Independent tire dealers dominate... but these 8,743 outlets also sell tires

Independent tire dealers account for 62.5% of the domestic replacement consumer tire market, more than 153 million tires. However, that means 37.5% — 92 million tires based on last year's shipments — are sold directly to the consumer through other distribution channels.

On the commercial side, local tire outlets represent 41% of the replacement truck tires shipped in the U.S., according to MacKay & Co. (www.mackayco.com). Of the remaining 59%, 2% are sold through truck stops, up from 1% in 2016. Travel Centers of America LLC is selling tires through its TA Truck Service Commercial Tire Network, and Love's Travel Stops & Country Stores continues to add stores.

The Modern Tire Dealer 100 list is representative of the independent side of retail and commercial tire sales. Here are some of the major tire sellers among mass merchandisers, warehouse clubs, tire company-owned stores, auto parts chains and truck stops.

Mass merchandisers: Walmart Tire & Lube Express, 2,582 stores; Sears Auto Centers, 286 stores.

Warehouse clubs: Sam's Club, 597 stores; Costco Wholesale, 533 stores; BJ's Wholesale, 223 stores.

Company-owned stores: Bridgestone Retail Operations, 2,230 stores (Firestone Complete Auto Care, 1,650 stores; Tires Plus, Hibdon Tires Plus and Wheel Works, 580 stores); Goodyear Auto Service Centers, 600 stores; Nokian/Vianor, 81 stores.

Auto parts chains: Pep Boys, 992 stores.

Truck stops: Love's Truck Tire Care centers (300) and Speedco locations (52), 352 stores; TA Truck Service Commercial Tire Network, 244 stores (plus 1 franchisee).

Wholesale distribution: American Tire Distributors Inc., 120; NTW, 118; TireHub LLC, 69.
